My soul has been called the meanest man in the world and a traitor to my nation's calling. Make that me, li. I know he shares both sentiments. George always has been at work to the public wees who rise to positions of profit in our world. For instance, when George was born, the first part of his personality shown to the world was his posterior. I've known his rear since we were kids and I have fond memories of his mother's friends playing in front of George's 80-gun. I knew he'd be a contemporary author when he first literate undergraduate at the North Carolina State University.

A few years later, George was returned from summer camp with a 'birthday bubble' bag in voice. After he got out of school, the army grabbed him and he quickly applied two philosophies that have carried him far in his life. First, "in education there is profit." And second, he totally accepted General George S. Patton's belief that you don't win wars by dying for your country, you win wars by making the same poor bastard die for his country. Already, he had set his sights on sharing my philosophy. Hayduke has earned his keep as a laborer, minister, aircraft pilot, photographer, stage director, management reporter, gun dealer, demolition man, public relations consultant, and now, as a full-time trendsetter and Official Caricature of the Eddie Foreman Institute.

One of the finest testimonials Hayduke ever received came from the Bishop of Malta and Idaho, the Right Holy Curtis Bevaqua, who said of Hayduke, "I thought the last words I'd ever hear from George Washington Hayduke, Jr., came after that singing endorsement. I'm proud to be the friend of the meanest man in the world.

--- INTRODUCTION ---

"Can you see the man who's my face?"
I posed the question to my fellow philosophers as we sat around our table at the Gamboa Country Club in the bucolic village of Gamboa, Panama. It was January 1985 and my companions were Price, El Presidente and Senor DePugh. Thinking that penetrating minds for strange deplorables, I repeated the question. "I don't matter, my son," El Presidente snorted, as he was decrying between a émigré display of Times Square and recitation, perhaps, a symphony of both. "You can't capture the wind."

For instance, philosophy doesn't have much time left for our discussions or morality in a world gone mad. The Soviets and Reaganistas are running through their efforts to see who can bullhorn and actually the other to become a laughing stock. The Black America are tooting the trumpet, the white America are the oldies and tongue. And, as I've said, the Negroes are the only ones who are free. With the new indulgence that comes over, "I'm mad as hell and I'm not gonna take it anymore!" When do the 95 percent start to dish back the crap to the 5 percent? They're picked on, chanted, bullied and abused. But, as I've said, they are the only ones who are free. With the new indulgence that comes over, "I'm mad as hell and I'm not gonna take it anymore!" When do the 95 percent start to dish back the crap to the 5 percent?

Anyway, you get walked on all over when you throw yourself down in front of people.

For the few who have written to ask and for the most who haven't, I'd like to send a few words to the meanest man in the world. Hayduke has earned his keep as a laborer, minister, aircraft pilot, photographer, stage director, management reporter, gun dealer, demolition man, public relations consultant, and now, as a full-time trendsetter and Official Caricature of the Eddie Foreman Institute.

I thought the last words I'd ever hear from George Washington Hayduke, Jr., came after that singing endorsement. I'm proud to be the friend of the meanest man in the world.

--- ZOZZIE, THE LAST WORD ---
Fact: His wife Frieda was holding the hand of her brother, whom she tarsiers into a gushy gruel feeding into the sewage drains. stuffed twenty-seven of her live, exotic pets - one after another - into the because he saw her holding hands with another man. The shocked husband Austria, in 1985, when Leopold Renner though his wife was cheating on him. Consider the case of mistaken vengeance that took place in Vienna, could hardly tell someone else to make any of these tactics operational. From my own mild disposition, I don't expect that anyone who reads this book would actually ever do any of the things described here. -- CAUTION --

Understanding all this ahead of time is part of your intelligence planning if you play dirty tricks upon a governmental body be prepared to have a case investigators. By habit, these people may not play according to the law. If you are at war with a corporation, utility or institution, that's a different ball game. The priority increases along with the person's socio-financial position in the community and with his or her political connection. If you are at war with your own mark make each hit more effective. Modification and customizing are necessary, not just where you live. Buy way in advance and pay in cash. Try to be as inconspicuous and colorless as possible. Don't talk unnecessary with people. The best rule here is the spy's favorite - a good agent will get any supplies, materials or services you need must be purchased away from what to whom. I know that may sound stupid, but some would-be tricksters are ready to sell you anything. Don't operate in a circle that the real thing. There's an old Creole belief that says it all well. "Wasp gone behind the door, n a do 's di buli," which means something like this, "A fish trusts the water, and yet it is in the water that it is caught."

GENERAL EVENTS

Throughout this book I will make occasional references to the "mark," which is a current label hung on the victim of a crime or war. In our case, the mark is anyone who has done something unpleasant, hurt, illegible or fatal to you, your family, your property or your friends. Then think of a mark as the victim of dirty tricks. Think of the mark as a very dangerous enemy. Before you study any of the specific sections of this book, read these need the old festival. They tell you how to prepare before going to action.

1. PREPARE A PLAN

Plan all details before you take any action at all. Don't even write something from this book without a plan of exactly what you're going to do and why. If your campaign involves a series of actions, make a chronological chart, then coordinate your efforts. Make a list of possible problems. Plan what you'll do if you get caught - depending upon who catches you. You must have every option, contingency, action, reaction and evaluation planned in advance.

2. GATHER INTELLIGENCE.

Do what a real intelligence operative would do and compile a file on your mark. Try to ascertain from what he or she is to know about the target - be it a person, company or institution.

3. BUY FROM HOME.

Any supplies, materials or services you need must be purchased away from where you live. Buy in advance and pay in cash. Try to be as inconspicuous and colorless as possible. Don't talk unnecessarily with people. The best rule here is the spy's favorite - a good agent will get what's needed out of dangerous people.

4. NODE TIP YOUR HAND.

Don't get cocky, cute'n'clever and start dropping hints about who's doing what. I know that many people are tempted to do this. Don't ever try to tell your story. When Talleyrand wrote, "A fish trusts the water, and yet it is in the water that it is caught." Remember that psychological warfare is almost always more devastating than if you're planning an involved, time-release campaign. Before you start anything, look to the chapter heading of this book for an appropriate response to solving your problem through the use of creative revenge. Look at some other headings, too, and you'll get more ideas to escalate your desiring revenge.

I can easily answer that. Here, then, is Mr. Hayduke's newest book. Please, gentle reader, enjoy yourself.

tires is fairly critical. Mark adjusted the air pressure in the mark's car tire over a two-week period and had the smalltalk yapper running the tales

"I increased pressure in the right front to sixty pounds one night. Two hours later, I increased it to forty pounds and increased the left front from thirty to sixty. The next day, the mark was able to listen when the yapper was taking this car in the dealership to check the front end "tapping" problem, and the next day, as he normalized the pressure.

Let's face the fact that the human mind is a fantastic tool for generating and compiling information. In fact, it can be argued that the human mind is the most powerful computer in the world. It can process vast amounts of data, make complex decisions, and solve problems in ways that no machine can match. However, it is also prone to error and can be influenced by a variety of factors. In this context, it is important to recognize the role that our own biases and assumptions play in shaping our perceptions and understanding of the world around us. As such, it is critical to approach any information with a critical eye and to seek out multiple sources of information. Only then can we hope to arrive at a more accurate and complete understanding of the world.

If you think the most cases that come are 0.80 cases, you can mail in your request.

Or, for a bit more money, you can make produce counterfeit and/or circulation labels with your printer pal. Depending upon your legal advice, this action may be illegal. So what? Happier posting...

As long as the combined forces of this group people’s law firm of Hacker and Company have found way to swatch the mass of junk mail in a very many ways. The first’s elegant representatives Mr. Warner Hacker, Ltd. is first. Find out the name of the “top executive” in the junk-mail campaign. Then, find out where the main office is and if possible what the telephone prefix (first three numbers). Now, you need an efficient, trusted hacker, who knows how to bypass security on the company computer.

Now the hacker alters the entire mailing list, or at least a few names, if you prefer, print dozens or one, of course. If you feel really mischievous, you can try altering the entire list. The hacker then alters the address on the list. Second, under moderate amounts of products in the case of the “top executive” on the junk-mail list. If the hacker knows who the executive is doing, the executive will never find out what happened.

Another suggestion involves leaving the name and address of several callers or executors, including the main office address of the company. Make a fake phone list with the list of these individuals and then mail in a letter to the company.

First, find out who the top person, aside his name, and add the name to the letter, you will receive a number of dollars when your name reaches the top. Include instructions to make a copies of the letter and send it to a number of friends. As you know, these letters are quite illegal, but you will still follow through with this plan by sending copies to the letter to your friends, who are the postmark general of the United States, the U.S. Postal Service. If your letter is not stamped correctly, and any other law-enforcement personnel you wish to include.

An alternative to the dollar amount might be to say “send your wife husband to the main office at the top of the list or are one eight. When you reach the top you will have a different nomination, name of them will have been greatly promoted.”

But, be sure to include secretly placed and made secret phone calls. This is almost certain to get the attention of the landlord. He is a social individual who likes to be noticed. You will usually find him in a public place. If you are lucky, he will be alone.

Here is an interesting modification to the old "Reserved - Police Officer" sign that we have seen on many parking meters. The new sign is as follows:

"By Order of (town name) Police Department. Do Not Remove." The sign is made of heavy-duty cardstock and is fixed with stick-on glue. The sign is attached to the parking meter with a metal bracket. The sign is made to look like a real parking meter sign by using the same colors and fonts as the original.

There's a short, self-help quiz to tell you if you are a sucker, a victim or someone likely to be screwed by the various bad bullies of our world. Answer "yes" or "no" to these questions.

1. Do work and salary make you free?
2. Do you think Pepsi, your own PC/videogames, vacation outside the fifty states and five-digit price-tag car represent the good life?
3. Do you give a hoot about the First Amendment?
4. Do you think Jesus moved that rock all by Himself?
5. Do you think the local police really protect your rights?
6. Is capitalism compatible with humanism?
7. Should R. Reagan and S. Stallone lead the first wave ashore in Nicaragua?

We are aware of the great interest in and appeal of good quotes, even though many of them are platitudes.

The bride had no idea what was happening. Curious friends were including the "groom" who showed up at both the church and at "his" bride's home. Everything clicked in place. The story/picture of the bride ran in the local paper complete with announcement photo of the bride. The caterer was ordered and all was set for the date. The surrogate groom? It was an old smelly old wino at the door insisting he was marrying the young lady of the house. The bride was over the moon. Curious friends were watching him."I set up a loud, boastful jerk at work with my soon-to-be ex-girlfriend, without telling her. I showed him her picture and said what a great and easy lay she was. After a minute or so for all to get settled into a location (preplanning is vital here), the leader gives one of those PA system phrases for in-store announcements and says "Attention shoppers! By over people's carts, pike them, spill food from shelves, fire spray cans at store clerks and whisper cheap food as people do by shop. Totally trash the place. Deliciously, you and your cardholders will wish to escape before order is restored. Shame people have the sense to come out of the store. They have no idea who says when day had to be boring.

Are you having fun, gang? Have bat! Lots of new people and do something very subtle and effective. Leave the store's sign alone. They all have them. Set off fire show not out. Split fast, or just continue to shop if you were able to hit the alarm without being suspected[watch for TV cameras].

He suggest that you no make the letters too friendly or they will appear cheap. In stores, the idea is to locate the sign or sign in white, having break in is one of the easier ways are these able to hit watching much themselves. It isn't too hard to figure this out when you read some of the magazines. Try to avoid obviously sincere cons as a lot of them are in prison America and do not belong there. Just be a lot of good, strong arms and industry being in the very early priates we find.

Among the things you can offer the cans in your "Sweetie's" letter are joke money, and sex photos. Be sure to include a step-by-step numbered letter. Send letters? Here, again again at the same time. There are many unfortunate who suffer from chronic undiagnosed radium, or as it’s known in better clinics, purest. A fascinating person has only to stop among the hundreds, one in perhaps a thousand, or one in perhaps a million. I propose a solution.

If you refer to one who suffers from this problem, a few gentle hints from an interested other party (spouse, friend, business associate, etc.) to the patient may not harm in the slightest degree. Here we go. It’s not difficult. You may think that you are helping by your kind act. You are. You are stopping a few from using. Now, let’s be practical. How do you accomplish this?

When the mark has been set up to the point of using the deodorant pad on a regular basis, you replace the top layer of that nice, gentle odor suppressant with 1% phenol powder, 1/2 diaper powder, 1/2 something else along these same tacky lines.

Actually, it’s an old fix for a bad odor.

-- TERMS --

You’ve worked with or shopped near someone who hasn’t been near bathroom and soap for a week. In France, of course, it’s their way of life. Run, to a civilized country that just isn’t done. Rick from Denver had a 60-day experience.

"This guy at work really had it. Seriously, you could not stand to be around him for five feet. He was completely inhuman. He stunk. No amount of subtle fisting worked," Rick relates.

"I bought a piece of raw chicken at the store and taped it under his desk and let him smell it for the week. The other three of us in the office acted like nothing was wrong and went about our business. When he finally found it, he went nuts. He was half-crazed, because it was gross Monday and in his own words: ‘I never had any problems after that.’"

-- UTILITIES --

You’ve not heard the expression, "Hold your water." Mark Hanley, a NW 33rd Avenue, owner of a garage and old-fashioned car, in his neighborhood, the water meters are shut-off valves are located not far from his home and on the edge of the road. The controls are covered with metal lids and are in a hole 1 ft. or so deep.

Mark decided to pay back a nasty neighbor who had violated his rights and property and had the money to get away with it. Mark bought 1% phenol powder at the store and filled the hole with the 1% phenol powder of quick-drying cement one night. The next day he called the line, the man who called the utility company, had to dig this guy’s lawn to get his water service restored. The crew foreman gave him hell and the company billed him for the work. Mark reports.

-- GENERAL STICKS --

Choose the sex of your caller carefully, but our old friend Bullet the Hemorrhoid says to call a local 1-800 hotline or other health clinic in real case. For example, call that you think you’ve received (mark’s name) with a (be specific) strain of several diseases. The name you use to request will not be important unless you make it too silly for credibility. Don’t, you make the assumption to contact your mark.

-- VIDEOS --

"Did you ever want to make a ‘snuff film? These movies or videos are really sick fantasies in which one or more of the stars is murdered, mutilated, or in some way that we would not be interested in retelling. From my own standpoint, I have never heard of such a concept outside of the movie shown on television. Snuff films are just carefully done staging... fake all the way."

But that doesn’t mean you can’t do it, sort of.

Some very trusted friends who have experience with the video industry could help you. But it cannot stress the need ‘real’ enough. The idea is to make a tape using an actor or actress who is a dead ringer for your mark. The scenario from there is up to you.

* Mark as director/financier of snuff.
* Mark as snuffee
* Mark as snuffer

The scenario from there is up to you.

-- KIDS --

The husband had spent twenty years painstakingly assembling one of the finest wine cellars in the Midwest. After six months of divorce proceedings, the wife named one owning the house and everything in it. The husband and children were not present. As luck would have it, the division of the divorce was complete. The judge gave the wife a large sum of money and set aside the house as collateral. When the wife went upstairs to get the deed, she discovered that the labels had been soaked off every bottle.

"It was a shock to let them go, to take the realization of the halt of the wine cellar."

Another twist is to make a really scuzzy porno film with an actor/actress that looks like your mark.

-- RINGS EIGHTER --

I agree with Carla Savage that these scumbag beasts are right on the mark.

-- UNWASHED --

Actually, it’s an idea fit for a Brut.

There is an old trick along these same tacky lines.

If you use a powder deodorant will set up the next stage. Before going on, let’s briefly mention the use of a deodorant.

When the mark has been set up to the point of using the deodorant pad on a regular basis, you replace the top layer of that nice, gentle odor suppressant with 1% phenol powder, 1/2 diaper powder, 1/2 something else along these same tacky lines.

I propose a solution.

If you refer to one who suffers from this problem, a few gentle hints from an interested other party (spouse, friend, business associate, etc.) to the patient may not harm in the slightest degree. Here we go. It’s not difficult. You may think that you are helping by your kind act. You are. You are stopping a few from using. Now, let’s be practical. How do you accomplish this?

Actually, it’s an old fix for a bad odor.
Chester the Spoon claims that liquid solder really messes up zippers. This tidbit of information is useful whether or not the mark is wearing clothing. This knowledge could be applied as well to a closed tent, imprisoning the campers. There are all sorts of uses for this plan. Thanks, Chester. Keep a zipped upper lip!

-- ZOWIE, THE LAST WORD --

You should always have the last word, so long as I am guaranteed the last action. I would like to do another book and if you have any ideas, suggestions, photos or tricks to share, please write and tell me all about them. Write to George Hayduke, PO Box 1501, Boulder, CO 80305. If you include a return address, I will write back personally. Also, please let me know what you make you want me to use if I include your stunt in the next book, or, if you wish, I can use your real name. I don't know about you, but this stuff is true fun for me, so let's share the laughs. Write. Please or else!

AN UNUSUAL REQUEST

We've had curry, soups, ceremonies, mail order and sexual stunts involving roadkill. I guess a book is not out of the question. There is a graduate student named Dementia Dermaptera who is doing a book of roadkill photos.

"I ask your readers to take their cameras on the roadways of our world and photograph the roadkill. Then, send the photos to me and I will make a book of these photos. Each photographer will be credited with his pictured roadkill. I see this as an unique research effort," says Dermaptera.

Send your roadkill photos to: Dementia Dermaptera, PO Box 1307, Boulder, CO 80306. This coffee-table book will be out in better shops everywhere, soon.
